HE MAY AID PARNELL.

DILLON SAID TO HAVE CHANGED HIS MIND.

Gladstone, Morley and McCarthy Out in a Batch of Denials—Parnell, However, Sticks to His Statements.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.
LONDON, Jan. 14.—Gladstone, replying to an inquiry as to the correctness of a statement in Mr. Parnell's speech at Limerick, Sunday, the Mr. McCarthy communicated to Mr. Gladstone the manifesto of Mr. Parnell before it was published, telegraphs that the assertion is untrue. McCarthy, he states, said that he had a manifesto but did not describe its contents.

DUBLIN, Jan. 14.—Mr. John Redmond has authorized the Dublin Telegraph to state that "the night before Mr. Parnell's manifesto was handed to the press it was read by Mr. McCarthy in the presence of Mr. Parnell, Mr. Leamy, Mr. William Redmond, Mr. O'Kelly and himself. Mr. McCarthy then informed Mr. Parnell that Mr. Gladstone said that if it was published he would immediately flatly contradict it and dispute Mr. Parnell's memory as to the Hawaiian conversation." Mr. Redmond adds: "My recollection of the incident is wholly inconsistent with Mr. McCarthy's denial." The Express of this city expresses the belief that it is incredible that Mr. Gladstone did not know the contents of the Parnell manifesto.

It is said that the McCarthyites expect that Mr. John Dillon on his return from the United States will signify his adherence to the faction of the Irish party which acknowledges Mr. Parnell as its leader.

DUBLIN, Jan. 14.—At a meeting of the National League held here Tuesday Mr. Parnell was given an enthusiastic reception. He was repeatedly greeted with cheers, and reiterated the statement that he had previously made to the effect that he informed Mr. Justin McCarthy as to the chief features of his manifesto at least twenty-four hours before it was published. During the course of his remarks Mr. Parnell said that conspiracy and lying were, next to billingsgate, the prominent features of his opponents' resources and arguments. He said he outlined to Mr. McCarthy what are known as the four points of his manifesto. Mr. McCarthy twice told him that he had consulted with Mr. Gladstone on these points, once when they were alone together and once in the presence of Mr. John Redmond. According to Mr. Parnell, Mr. McCarthy said: "All I can say as I have already told you, is that Mr. Gladstone intends to deny, point blank, all your statements, which," said Mr. Parnell, "showed that Mr. Gladstone was aware of the proposed points of the manifesto." Mr. Parnell announced that the subscriptions to the National League funds since the last meeting exceeded £5,000, showing that the country is practically won.

The National League at Belfast held a meeting Tuesday. After hours of noisy discussion the committee rescinded the vote of confidence in Mr. Justin McCarthy which was adopted some time ago and then adopted a vote of confidence in Mr. Parnell, the vote standing 57 to 34.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mr. John Morley in a speech at Newcastle said that what ever else might happen at the next general election it was certain that the disident party would cease to exist. The situation in England was a purely personal one, and as for Ireland her future depended upon herself alone. "I am authorized to say," continued Mr. Morley, "that after reading Parnell's speech at Limerick Gladstone maintains that he did not ask a binding assent to any proposal made at Hawarden. He naturally named Mr. Parnell as the author of the suggestion in order to improve his knowledge of the field within which the ex-Minister might confer with the consent of the Irish member. Neither the constabulary nor the aristocracy was mentioned at the Hawarden interview and it was not proposed to hand over the judiciary to the British Government for a decade or for any other period."

Mr. Morley denied positively that he had ever offered Mr. Parnell the chief secretaryship of Ireland. He ridiculed the idea that home rule was dead, and declared that it was the duty of the Liberal Government to forward by every legitimate means in their power.

Justin McCarthy in a communication to the Daily News (Liberal) says: "Messrs. Parnell and Redmond have attempted to centralize the movement by a union with Mr. Gladstone. On that point I am not merely the best, but the only authority. I did not inform Mr. Gladstone of the contents of Mr. Parnell's manifesto. I was asked to call on Mr. Gladstone to obtain assurances with regard to his rule. Mr. Gladstone acquainted me with his opinions, wishes and willingness on the subject. From what he told me I was able to express to Mr. Parnell my conviction that if his manifesto were published Mr. Gladstone would be in a position to give certain of its statements a flat contradiction. That is the whole story."

KANSAS FARMERS DYING FROM WANT.
LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 14.—J. H. Shirley, of Northfield, Sherman County, in Western Kansas, is in the city soliciting aid for the destitute settlers there. He was appointed by a committee of starving farmers who gave him as credentials a signed appeal for aid. The appeal says that their crops have failed for five years and that now they are actually dying from destitution, starving from want of food and freezing for want of clothing and fuel.

Assigned.
WILLIAMTIC, Conn., Jan. 14.—William C. Jilison, who owns three-quarters of the stock of the Hop River Warp Company and who is business manager of the company, has assigned to Julius Phinney, of Williamtic. The liabilities are said to be over $65,000, and it is expected that the assets will realize about fifteen cents on the dollar.

LA PRATERIE, Minn., Jan. 14.—Wild excitement prevails here over the striking of hematite ore, assaying 62 per cent at a depth of fifty feet in the Buckeye mine, owned by Minnesota and Ohio men. The strike is rich and ore plentiful, the drill having pierced through four feet of it already.

IOWA'S COAL PRODUCT.
DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 14.—The report of the Iowa State Mine Inspectors shows that the coal output in the State in 1890 was 7,640,820 tons, an increase over 1889 of 280,000 tons.

To prevent the danger of burning rubber fresh laid on them and set in a hot oven until thoroughly heated.

ILLINOIS LAW-MAKERS.

Many Measures Introduced in Both Branches of the State Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 14.—In the Senate at Monday's session the election committee was given power to appoint sub-committees and compel the attendance of all necessary witnesses. The House joint resolution appointing a committee on joint rules was adopted, and Senators Thomas and Wells were appointed. The House joint resolution that each body vote separately for a United States Senator on next Tuesday was made a special order for next Thursday at 10:30. A joint resolution by Senator Sheets to place before the people at the next general election the question of calling a constitutional convention was referred to the committee on judiciary. Emergency appropriation bills were read a second time and ordered to third reading. Bills were introduced as follows and the Senate adjourned:

To allow change of venue to the proper county when a suit is brought in the wrong county; to extend mechanic's liens to any permanent improvement or real estate; to protect persons giving promissory notes for patent rights and lightning rods; to release profits from estates of less than $1,000 and guardianships of less than $200; to compel all school books and supplies to be furnished pupils free of charge; to give married women the same powers in divorce suits that married men have; making eight hours a legal day's work.

In the House the committee on rules made a report, recommending substantially the rules of the last session, with the addition of four new committees—world's fair committee, Congressional apportionment, Senatorial apportionment and judicial apportionment committees. They were adopted by acclamation.

The roll was called for the general introduction of bills, and fifty or sixty were presented and referred. Seven or eight provided for the regulation of stock-yard charges, as large a number provided for the adoption of the American system, and the insurance companies, the express companies, building societies and corporations generally came in for a good share of the proffered legislation. Among other bills were the following: National bank note system, to increase to six per cent; to create a State board of inspection of county officers; (it provides such as inspection of county officers that to such office, should it become a law, can be so conducted as to appropriate any fees or dues to the personal use of those who occupy them); to consolidate the three grand divisions of the State Supreme Court, so that there shall be but one headquarters, and that at Springfield; to repeal the present compulsory school law and substitute one without a trust officer system, making members of the board of education trustees in effect; for the protection of saloon keepers, amending the dram shop act so that they shall not be punished for selling to habitual drunkards unless they knowingly do so.

A resolution indorsing the free-coinage silver bill now before Congress, and instructing the Representatives in Congress from the State to vote for it was carried by a vote of 77 to 5.

The speaker, appointed as House members of a joint committee on rules Messrs. Ramsay, of Clinton; Dixon and Hunter, of Winnebago. He also announced the appointment of Rev. William Steers as chaplain. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late S. P. Marshall were adopted, and the House adjourned.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Bills Concerning Railroad Passes and Drunkenness Introduced.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 14.—Ex-Speaker Drekema on Tuesday introduced a bill in the Legislature prohibiting the issuing of railroad passes to members under penalty of a fine of not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000. The law also applies to all State officers and judges of courts of record. If the pass is accepted the recipient is liable to a like fine or one year's imprisonment, at the option of the court. Bills were also introduced to provide a uniform system of school text-books under State contract, and to abolish the State Board of Corrections and Charities, the State Weather Service, the State Board of Health and the State Game Wardenship. Representative Leach, of Tuscola, introduced a remarkable bill punishing drunkenness. It provides that persons found drunk shall be fined not over $100 for the first offense, double that sum for the second, and treble for the third. For selling liquor to persons addicted to drink a like fine is imposed, with an alternative of imprisonment. Just how the symptoms of drunkenness shall be determined is laid down in the bill, and it is provided that a committee of two under oath shall pass upon the intoxication of the individual arrested.

Governor Winans made and the Senate confirmed the following appointments: Charles R. Whitman, of An Arbor, commissioner of railroads; George N. Davis, of Grand Rapids, warden of Jackson prison; Galusha Pennell, of St. Johns, warden of Ionia prison; Herschel Whittaker, of Detroit, fish commissioner.

Heavy Losses Sustained by Business Men in New York and in Salt Lake City.
NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—At this hour (m.) fire is raging in Van Tassell's grain elevator at Eleventh street and Thirteenth avenue. The building is a store with flour, grain, etc., and will be totally destroyed. The loss will be from $250,000 to $300,000.

Fire is also destroying the seven-story brick building occupied by Vaughn & Williams, iron, steel and oil merchants. The building runs from West to Caroline street. The Caroline street side is burned out. The janitor and his wife had a narrow escape. The family on the opposite side of Caroline street, at No. 8, had to leave the house. An old man is missing. The damage will be about $125,000.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Jan. 14.—What threatened to be a disastrous fire was started at 3 p. m. Tuesday by the explosion of a lamp of the Co-operative Furniture Company in the Hooper-Eldridge building on North Main street. The flames spread so quickly that the employees barely escaped with their lives. The fire was difficult to reach, but the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to one part of the building. The furniture company loses stuff valued at $45,000; insurance, $12,000. Barton & Co., clothiers, in the store adjoining, lose goods valued at $20,000; insurance, $10,000; Hyde & Griffin, provisions, lose goods worth $10,000, insured for $5,000. ### STRUCK BY AN ENGINE.

FOUR FARMERS LOSE THEIR LIVES IN OHIO.

They Try to Cross the Track in Front of a Train Near Clyde—The Vehicle Struck by the Engine, and All Are Killed.

ONLY THEMSELVES TO BLAME.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 14.—At 6 o'clock Tuesday night a frightful accident happened on the Lake Shore railroad about four miles west of Clyde, resulting in the death of Milt Gilmore, Grant Fleming, Rube Babcock and Charles Ream, all farmers. The train was running at a high rate of speed, trying to make up lost time. The team drawing the sleigh containing the four men attempted to cross the track ahead of the train and the engineer blew the whistle and rang the bell violently, but the men paid no attention to it. He at once put on the air brakes with such force as to throw the passengers out of their seats, but the train struck the party squarely, killing three of them and injuring the fourth man so badly that he died in a few minutes. Gilmore and Fleming were thrown fully 100 feet from the track and up against a fence. Fleming was the only married man in the party. He leaves a large family in poor circumstance. No blame is attached to the engineer.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Bills for a Number of Public Buildings Passed by the Senate and House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the State Senator Brown (Ala.), on behalf of Senator Colquitt (Ga.), gave notice of an amendment to the financial bill abolishing the tax on State banks. Bills were passed appropriating $75,000 for a public building at Fresno, Cal., and $100,000 for a public building at Joliet, Ill.

Senator Hale (Mo.) submitted the report of the census committee on the apportionment bill. The committee says that it approves the bill passed by the House, providing for 356 members. Senators Davis (Minn.), Berry (Ark.) and Blodgett (N. J.) submitted a minority report in which it is contended that New York, Minnesota and Arkansas are entitled each to an additional member, making the apportionment 359.

Senator Sherman (O.) then addressed the Senate for three hours and a half on the financial bill. After several other speeches had been made for and against the free coinage amendment it was decided that Senator Jones (Neb.), Ingalls (Kan.) and (La.) and Hiseock (N. Y.) should be allowed to address the Senate in extenso to-day, beginning at 10 o'clock, after which the ten-minute debate should be entered upon. Adjourned.

The House agreed to the Senate amendment fixing the limit of cost for a public building at Davenport, Ia., at $100,000. The army appropriation bill was then taken up for discussion.

CHAPTER VI.

"My God! those papers are gone."

"Fred, what did Maj. Kenyon mean by his reference to Mr. Hearn and some story about him?" asked Mrs. Lane that evening as the captain was looking up after his guests had departed. Miss

Marshall, who was glancing over a photograph album, closed it and rose as though to leave the parlor.

"No, don't go," said Capt. Lane promptly. "I was sorry that Kenyon made any reference to the matter, but since he did I want you both—indeed I think Hearn told me because he wanted

you both—to know all about the affair.

He had never mentioned it to me, nor to any one, I fancy, before, because that was no need. It was all settled some time ago, but of course he felt sensitive about it. He was a green young lieutenant when he joined here six years ago.

This Jew Schenberg was clerk at the supt's office. The officers dealt very largely with him then, for town was not as accessible as it is now.

"The former post trader was a jovial, kindly sort of fellow, who was much liked by everybody, but he left his books and his business in the hands of Schenberg. I have often heard how open handed he was with his money, and how officers and men too, never had to go to any banker or cashier if they needed money for an emergency.

Anything a friend of his wanted was at his service. Hearn began as a good many boys of his genial temperament

apt to do at a big and expensive post

—got in debt, for everybody wants to give credit to young officers just starting, and then the bills come in all as one swoop afterward. "Old Chery," as they used to call him, saw Hearn's trouble,

and insisted on lending him money out of his own pocket. It wasn't a store matter at all; it wasn't entered on Hearn's account. He paid it back in installments to the old man himself, or was doing it when he received his promotion and had to make the long and expensive journey to Arizona.

"Except on cash first joining, officers must raise the money as best they can,

and it is mighty hard on a young lieutenant. "Old Chery," of course, advanced Hearn about two hundred dollars. The first was paid, all but fifty of it, and he told the boy when he left that he had taken a big liking to him, and that he could just return that as his compensation. Hearn never lost a day after getting to his new post and obtaining his mileage, but bought a draft for two hundred dollars and sent it to the old man at once, and said in his letter that he would remit the balance of the account and his store bill just as soon as possible. "Old Chery" was a man who never wrote letters, but Hearn got a line

from his wife saying that Mr. Braine had received his pleasant letter with its inclosure, and sent his best wishes.

"A few months afterward the old man suddenly died; the widow moved to town; a new trader came and took the store, and when Hearn sent his next remitance of fifty dollars to the widow he was surprised in the course of a few months afterward to receive what purported to be a statement of his account with the state of Thomas Braine, deceased—a store bill amounting to over a hundred dollars, and no less than five hundred dollars in borrowed money. He wrote nextstantly to a friend at Fort Ryan to see the widow and have things straightened out. He protested that his store bill had had paid back to him all but fifty and two hundred more when he went to Arizona, which he had instantly repaid,

so that the total amount of his indebtedness could not exceed one hundred dollars. But the widow said she didn't know anything about it.

Mr. Schenberg had kindly taken charge of all his affairs, and he had the books and everything and all the correspondence and knew all about it.

Hearn, of course, refused to pay anything but the hundred dollars. They threatened him with legal proceedings, and next they threatened him with through the law department, which, just as old Kenyon says, believed the blackguard and called on Hearn for an explanation. It nearly drove the young fellow mad. He was proud and sensitive. He couldn't bear to think of the publicity and scandal. He had never given Braine any receipt for the money obtained from him; never had asked for the money back. He was too hon-substant and the inevitable accumulation of odds and ends with which a soldier's field desk is apt to be littered. But the pigeonholes had been quite systematically labeled. There were compartments bearing the legends "letters unanswered," "letters answered," "personals," "daily papers," "bills unpaid," (but importantly occupied) "pay accounts," "maps," "wild notes," etc.

"I never knew the necessity of having some sort of system," said Kenyon, "until after the experience I have been telling you of, captain, and I am indebted to dear old R-wins for it. You never met him, did you, Maj. Kenyon?"

"No, except just for a moment in the Shenandoah valley during the war. He was commanding his regiment then."

"Yes, and lived to be shot down in cold blood by a lot of ambushing Apaches nearly a quarter of a century after, and—nothing but a captain of cavalry."

"He had some little property here in town at one time," said Kenyon. "That was nearly ten years ago, though, and it went at a sacrifice. I don't know what it was with him was a local tax-payer, that he got to know your Hebrew friend of today."

"He never told me what he knew of him, beyond the mere fact that he was dishonest and a born mischief-maker. But the moment he took that case up for me Schenberg dropped it. For some reason the Jew was afraid of the old man, as every one called Rawlins."

"Who did you prove it?" asked Miss Marshall, after a pause.

"Well, no one that I know of. All we know is that Schenberg was glad to drop the matter three months ago when Capt. Rawlins first tackled the case. Hearn says he never alluded to it from that time to this until the fellow's language today; but that was only some vague drunken threat."

"But if, on the contrary, it should prove that he meant to make more trouble for Mr. Hearn," asked Miss Marshall, "is Capt. Rawlins here?"

"By Jove!" exclaimed the captain, starting suddenly to his feet, his face growing as suddenly grave and said, "that possibly explains the letter that came to me yesterday morning. I was reading it as you came down to breakfast—a low, anonymous thing, and it burned it. Now I wish I had kept that."

"About Mr. Hearn, was it?" asked Mrs. Lane anxiously.

"Yes; and now I can begin to understand it, too. Miss Marshall," said he, turning impressively toward her, "your question goes to the very bottom of this case. The friend who blocked their game three years ago is gone; Rawlins was killed in the last campaign in Arizona."

"Oh, Fred!" cried Mrs. Lane. "And was there not one else who had helped Mr. Hearn?"

"No one but our old Rawlins, Mabel, and of all men to help him now he would have been the most valuable here with our new colonel, for he and Morris had been devoted and intimate friends in war days, and I am told the colonel was deeply cut up by the news of Rawlins' death. There was something romantic about their early friendship. Capt. Rawlins was a widower whose wife had died in a few years of her marriage, and I have heard that both he and Morris when young officers were in love with her, and that they had chosen Rawlins."

"But, Capt. Lane," said Miss Marshall, whose thoughts seemed less fixed upon the romantic than upon the practical side of the case, "surely Mr. Hearn has receipts in full for this amount?"

"I do understand him, Miss Marshall; and I do not know the nature of the papers to which he refers. I think he said that he had her letter; but that is of less value now."

"And why?" asked Miss Marshall.

"Because the widow married Schenberg."

A DREAM IN OLD IVORY.

OPERA HOUSE INTERIOR PRESENTED TO VIEW.

In the Auditorium, With Its Walls of Cream, Ivory and Old Rose, There Are Chairs For 800, and Room For As Many More.

Representatives of the press viewed the Myers opera house in its completed form last evening. They saw a house in which every detail has been carefully worked out, and where the most elaborate productions can find ample accommodations.

The house will accommodate nearly 1200 people. The seats have been so placed, moreover, that each commands a perfect view of the stage, and are divided as follows:

Orchestra, 280.
Orchestra circle, 250.
Balcony, 350.
Boxes, 24.
Gallery, 500.

In addition to this there is standing room for at least four hundred.

The decorations of the house have been most admirably executed, and show great artistic skill and much thought.

The main auditorium is in the Louis XV character of ornamentation in soft shades of light antique maroon for the lower portion of the house, terminating in old rose and cream at the ceiling.

The proscenium arch, boxes, balcony, and gallery fronts are finished in a soft antique ivory effect making a most exquisite finish and in perfect harmony with the decorations.

There are three vestibules, the style of ornamentation in all being of the Renaissance period, quite different from the main auditorium, the inner vestibule being in shades of old blue and old Indian yellow; the second one in shades of terra cotta and the other one in shades of olive yellow.

This work was executed by the firm of Mitchell & Halbois of Chicago, the most prominent decorators in this country, and who have decorated during the past five years seventy of the most important and handsomest theatres in this country—in Boston, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and other cities.

The scenery, which those who visited the house last evening also had an opportunity to view, is the work of Al. Bender. The different pieces show thorough appreciation, as well as the touch of one skilled in details. The drop curtain represents a picture in a massive frame, with heavy folds of drapery looped about it. The picture is of Little Fish Haven, New Amsterdam, and is finely executed.

Seats for the opening sold to-day like hot cakes; the price being reduced to one dollar for seats in the body of the house and fifty cents in the gallery, and many who felt unable to buy tickets at five dollars apiece, took advantage of the low sale.

WILL SHOW BOWER CITY VIEWS.

Arthur C. Jackson's Plan for Booming Janesville in the East.

Arthur Jackson is in the city and will meet members of the Business Men's Association at their rooms next Monday evening to lay before them a novel plan for advertising the city.

Mr. Jackson has been in the lecture field for the past five years, and during that time he has made two trips abroad in the advertising interests of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road. This company endorse him very highly. The lectures he plans to give are descriptive of illustrations thrown upon canvas and serve to bring out the advantages of different localities.

The scheme will be fully explained by Mr. Jackson next Monday evening, and if the association think favorable, arrangements will be made for a lecture at the opera house or some other suitable place in the near future. A part of the proceeds of this lecture will be spent by Mr. Jackson in securing views of the city, which will be used in subsequent lectures to advertise the city. The plan is a novel one, and may be made effective if properly handled. If Janesville can be advertised in fifty different cities as one of the growing cities of the north-west, it should bring good results.

SCARED TO DEATH, THEN SHOT.

Horrible Fate of Burglars Who Face the New Alarm.

No ordinary burglary alarm was the device shown in a west side hardware store to-day. To be sure, it is intended to alarm, but it backs up its warning with cold lead.

It is made in Milwaukee, and might be called rather complicated. The one on exhibition to-day was arranged for attachment to a window, but others are fitted for safes, doors or money drawers. Once attached, it will be set in motion by opening the thing to which it is attached. It first sounds a gong which will alarm the neighbors within a mile and if that does not scare the burglar to death it discharges four revolvers at him—at least it will at him if he chances to stand directly in front of it; if he does not, it may be at somebody else.

N. O. W'S AGAIN DEFEATED.

The Light Infantry Winners in Last Night's Ball Game.

The Light Infantry base ball team scored another victory over the N. O. W. club at the Army last night. The game was close, however, and was exciting from start to finish. Brilliant plays were plenty on both sides, and were vigorously applauded.

Whiting and Shelly were the Light Infantry battery, while Barnard and Young the points for the N. O. W's. The score stood:

Light Infantry.....10110054-32
N. O. W. Club.....30113300-11

Thomas Clark and L. V. Price were umpires, and Peter Champion scorer. The time of the game was a little over an hour.

It has been decided to put the meeting over for one week beyond the scheduled time in order that the meetings of the club may not interfere with the meetings of the Oshkosh society. The date of the session is therefore February 2.

The Union Gospel meeting held at the Congregational church last evening was one of the most interesting and successful so far. Rev. Mr. Evans preached a good sermon upon "What Shall I Do to Be Saved?" A rousing gospel choir is doing good service. Rev. Mr. Eaton will preach this evening.

One of the attractions of the evening will be an orange tree laden with fruit. Another will be the head decorated menu cards, which will serve as souvenirs.

CHOPPED THE PASTOR'S WOOD.

Orfordville Methodists Surprise Their Minister by Using Axes.

The cold weather does not alarm the Methodist minister at Orfordville. A few mornings ago a strong force of men and boys from his congregation appeared in the church yard, and by evening there was wood enough worked up to supply the parsonage a whole year. The only thing to rob the occurrence of its romantic character is that it all happens once a year.

Beauty Without Paint.

"What makes my skin so dark and muddy? My cheeks were once so smooth, and ruddy? I used the best cosmetics made."

"That's not the cure" my charming miss said. "The doctor said—'remember this: If you want your skin to keep clear, bright, and rosy, you must keep it free from the powder and paint."

"The proper thing for all such skin is this," remarked the man of pills: "Erich the blood and make it pure—in this you find the only cure."

NO STRIKE IN JANSVILLE.

Local Operators on the C. M. & St. P. Stay At Work.

Janesville is but little affected by the troubles between the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad company and the telegraph operators. There will be but little if any trouble on the Mineral Point division of the road, as very few of the operators are members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers.

Those that are members are reluctant to comply with the demands of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers.

TOLD A TALE OF SORROW.

Sad Scene at the Milwaukee & St. Paul Depot To-day.

Teas stood in a tall traveling man's eyes as he stood on the Milwaukee & St. Paul depot this morning. He was W. R. Smith, and he carries a grip for Johnson & Fuller, of Cincinnati. He had been talking with some fellow traveler when a Western Union messenger handed him a yellow envelope.

"Smith's girl has telegraphed him that she's gone back on him," said one of them, and the other joined in the laugh. "She didn't even pay for the dispatch," said another, as the man handed the boy a quarter and signed for the message.

There was no answering smile at the pleasanties. The dispatch was read and handed to the first jerk. It was as follows: "CINCINNATI, Jan. 10, 1891.—W. R. Smith:—We fear that your wife is dying with diphtheria. Come at once."

"Boy's that breaks me all up," said the recipient of the dispatch as he dashed the tears from his eyes. "When I left home last week my wife had a sore throat. The doctors said that she would be all right in a few days so I did not delay my trip. I must go back on the first train. Don't say a word boys," as they started to apologize for the joke; "it's all right. A traveling man never knows what news is in a telegram. You didn't mean it. Well, good bye."

Through the window of a car the Chicago train could be seen the same man who but a few minutes before had not thought of anything, but the jokes that the group had been telling, with his head bowed forward upon the seat in front of him. On the platform of the train were the three men who had heightened his sorrow by the friendly jokes. It would be safe to say from their expressions that each had registered a solemn oath never to make fun of another man, when one of the yellow envelopes that contained a sad or joyous message should be handed him.
